

Final project brief

Project Name: 9tyminutes

my project is called 9ty minutes, it's a football website that provides the latest news for the football teams and also the live scores of the matches with a possibility to include high lights for the goals as well.

Technologies to be used:

I will be using HTML, CSS, JavaScript for the frontend of the website and I will be using Django with SQL for the backend of the website.

How will the site work:

there will be articles that categorized according to the country of teams and according to team (if you want news about Barcelona you can go to Barcelona category and you will find all what you want there). There will be comments where users can add comments edit or delete his comment as well.

the score of the matches will be brought using API to be delivered automatically during the matches.

that's a brief of the project am working on